

Mary Higgins Clark, novelist

B.A. in Philosophy, Fordham University

Photo: Rhododendrites | License: CC BY-SA 4.0

I was going to go for an English major, but after [one] class I thought, “Let’s go for philosophy.” Because, of course, there is so much reading in a philosophy course of study, and I do love to read. There is a lot of psychology in philosophy, which I found fascinating. And it has been very helpful in my writing.

Higgins Clark, M. (2000) “Conversation With Mary Higgins Clark.” Interviewed by Claire E. White for The Internet Writing Journal, May.